

Adalynn Guzman
4th Grade
Highland Park Elementary
December 7th, 2021
Mrs. Wheat's Classroom

Being An Excellent Student and Person

How do I pursue excellence both as a student and a person? I always try my best, I'm always generous, and I am a good listener. I think these qualities are important to being excellent both as a person and a student.

Trying my best is a good way at being excellent as a student and a person. This is a good way because as a student you can achieve anything you put your mind to. As a person doing your best can get you further in life. By being a good student and person, it is good to try your best so you can have a better life.

Another way of being excellent both as a student and a person is to be generous. This is a good quality to have as a student because it creates a better environment at school and you can make more friends. Being generous as a person is a good way to spread positivity throughout my community and make the world a better place. I pursue being excellent as a student and a person by being generous.

The last way I achieve being excellent both as a student and a person is by being a good listener. Being a good listener as a student is important because you can learn and be more independent. As a person, being a good listener is also important because you can help others when they need it. By being a good listener I can achieve excellence as a student and a person.

Excellence can easily be done by a student and person. Trying your best, being kind, and being a good listener are very important. These three qualities are how I pursue excellence as both a student and person.